"Invasion" was the watchword today in the Pacific, with the Japs reporting Allied landings on another island off the Borneo coast and openly expressing official fears of a forthcoming American thrust against itself.

TOKYO radio said that possibly 5,000—one division—spearheaded an amphibious thrust aimed at seizure of Labuan Island, off the west coast of north Borneo. The island lies in the South China Sea, dominating the entrance to Brunei Bay, and was reportedly softened up by battleships, cruisers and other warships which shelled installations for a 24-hour period ending at noon Friday.

There was no confirmation in Allied circles of the reported landing, but Gen. Douglas MacArthur was known to have troops on several

UP-TO-PRESS-TIME WAR BULLETINS

CRUSHING TWO "JAP" POCKETS

GUAM—Two Japanese pockets on southern Okinawa were being crushed today by five American divisions advancing relentlessly against fanatical enemy defenders under cover of one of the Pacific war's heaviest barrages.

Four of the U. S. divisions pressed southward against the Yaeyu-Dake encampment, only to be eliminated in the area of less than 19 square miles still held by Japs on the island only 325 miles from Japan.

Elements of one of these divisions, together with a fifth, advanced toward each other near the base of the Oahu peninsula, threatening to split the trapped enemy units in that area into two smaller pockets.

On both of these battle sectors, the Japanese continued to display fanatical resistance that only their annihilation can terminate.

In the main clash, the First Division Marines were arrayed with the 96th, 77th and Seventh Army Infantrymen along the shortest and most consolidated front the Yanks have held since breaking the Naha-Shuri-Yonabaru line.

As these Yanks pushed southward along the five-mile-long battle-line, elements of the First Marines pushed toward the Sixth Division leathernecks advancing inland from Oahu peninsula's Naha airfield. Between these columns was a major Jap force which will be split by an imminent juncture of these American units.

At either end of the battle-line, the anchor towns—Itoman on the west coast, and Hanagusuku on the east—were threatened with occupation by the First and Seventh Divisions.

ENCOURAGING SIGN

Easing of restrictions which have retarded construction of dwellings should serve two purposes. A token distribution of priorities required for home building announced by the National Housing Agency is a hopeful sign, as is raising from $200 to $1,000 the amount an individual may spend on repairs or construction without priorities.

When House building is again permitted on a normal scale, employment will be provided for artisans who otherwise might be idle, and there will be a beginning in meeting the needs of persons seeking homes through purchase or on a rental basis.

Removal of restrictions will revive one of the nation's most important industries. Present conditions under which families that have rented houses are forced to vacate and buy housing accommodations at greatly inflated prices will not be eased immediately, but there is hope that they will not continue to become worse.

CARRIERS, NOT CENSORS

Whenever some postmaster general in the future is tempted to revoke the second class mailing privilege of a book or magazine because he does not like the text and pictures that it prints, there should be some method by which he could be compelled to sit down and read the wise and witty opinion which Judge Thurman Arnold of the Circuit Court of Appeals has handed down in the case of Esquire magazine.

When he has done this, it is to be doubted he will make the mistake Postmaster General Walker did when he tried to force Esquire to drop its mildly risque jokes and scantily-clad Varga girls, by barring it from the postal rates available to newspapers and magazines.

As Judge Arnold said, in ruling the suspension of second class privileges illegal and unconstitutional, it is not the duty of the Post Office Department "to determine what is good for the public to read." It is getting on dangerous ground when it tries to compel publications to conform "to the taste or ideas of any government official." For there is no hard and fast line "between refined humor and low comedy" and there is no final answer to the question of "when a scantily-clad lady is art, and when she is highly improper."

All freedom-loving Americans will share Judge Arnold's hope that "this is the last time that a government agency will attempt to compel the acceptance of its literary or moral standards relating to material admittedly not obscene." Censorship of taste or ideas is a perilous thing to fool with. It is a power that Congress certainly never intended to vest in any cabinet official.

The Post Office Department had better follow the court's advice and stick to carrying the mails instead of trying to censor what is in them.

Argentina is to receive sufficient tires to meet economic needs. Perhaps the trouble with American motorists is that they never liked Hitler.

By Rev. Edward G. Yeomans

We pray Thee, dear Father, to help us to make our religion a daily reality. May it penetrate all our activities, forming and purifying our thoughts and desires. What we do, may we do it from the heart as to the Lord and not to men. Help us to hear as well as to speak. We commit ourselves to Thy gracious care, in Thy great love and mercy forgive and answer us. Bless all whom we love, hearken to our many petitions and shower down upon us Thy blessings, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

BINTCLIFFE ON MOUND

Pietris Performs Well For The Winning Team

TRENTON, N. J., June 9—Held to two hits, the Fleetwings Arrows took a dip towards the cellar of the Trenton Industrial League last evening as they were blanked by the J. A. Roebling nine, 4-0, on Wetzel field.

The hits, both singles made by Fred Crotti, came in the second and seventh innings. In the ninth, Crotti almost beat out an infield grounder for a third safety.

"Benny" Bintcliffe hurried for the Wingers but his wildness made his job hard. In the first an error by Tosti, Mike Rossi's hit, and a wild pitch gave the Roebling team a run. In the fourth, two singles, and two wild pitches caused another tally while in the eighth two more crossed when Biscopo was hit by a pitched ball. Pietris walked. Bintcliffe's throw to Barletta struck an umpire, and Bintcliffe uncorked another wild pitch.

"Tommy" Pietris gave an excellent mound performance for the winners and had five strikeouts to his credit. "Mike" Rossi led the stickmen with three out of four.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

actly that hope was held out in the Truman statement, which said that we have no desire to exterminate or enslave the Japanese people. There is sound ground for believing our British ally is in entire accord with the Truman view. Prolongation of the war in no way would alter the result, but it would unnecessarily cost the lives of many thousands more American soldiers and sailors. In addition the strain upon our economic and fiscal system would be greatly increased.

AND THERE is another reason for ending the fighting within the next few months before Russia comes in as an ally. So far as the British and ourselves are concerned, this war has been won without Russia, but Russian entrance might hasten the end and certainly would entitle Russia to a voice in the peace terms. It is agreed that the Russian demand would be for Manchuria and neither the British nor ourselves would be in position to reject that demand. Russian domination of Manchuria, in time, would mean the communication of all China; ultimately of all Asia. Anyone who thinks that would be to our advantage is a little thick in the head.

AS FAR AS the Japanese are concerned, Russian entrance, it is argued, would mean a more ruthless end of the war and a more territory and treatment of her people. The Japanese feeling toward Russia in this respect is not very different from that of the Germans. A quick end on our terms is, of course, highly desirable for both Americans and British. But it is infinitely more desirable for Japan. Her choice is between what she can get now and practical extermination. This is so clear that the belief grows in Washington that a peace grows in Washington that will come from her before long. Until it comes, of course, it is good Japanese strategy to continue the suicide tactics and promote the notion that no surrender can ever be expected, that they will fight until the last Jap dies, which, of course, is idiocy.

Returning to the observation post, he continued to direct mortar fire. Through his efforts, our mortars were able to practically wipe out all enemy opposition in that sector. He received a citation from his commanding officer who said, "the skill, courage and initiative exhibited in this task, was an inspiration to the officers and men of this organization."

Cpl. Yehle is the son of Mrs. Ethel M. Boyson, Philadelphia.

Peter Spezzano, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Spezzano, Pond street, was commissioned an ensign in the U. S. Naval Reserve when he graduated recently from the Naval Reserve Midshipmen's School at Abbott Hall, Northwestern University, Chicago, Ill.

He completed four-month course consisted of instruction in navigation, seamanship, damage control, communications, ordnance and gunnery.

The newly commissioned Ensign will now see action with the fleet as a deck officer.

WITH THE 38TH DIVISION ON LUZON, June 9—The Combat Infantry Badge has been awarded to Pte. Donald M. Broschard, of Bristol, Pa., now serving with the 151st Infantry, for his participation in mopping up operations in the Luzon mountains.

Broschard is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard L. Broschard, Schumacher Drive, Bristol.

AN ATC BASE, Marrakech, F. M., June 9—Cpl. John Patti, husband of Virginia Patti, Garden street, Bristol, Pa., is assigned to duty with the mess department of this base unit, commanded by Lt. Col. Rollen H. Anthis, of the North African Division, Air Transport Command.

Assigned with other highly trained technicians to the department responsible for the feeding of permanent and transient personnel, Sgt. Patti received necessary army training while in the United States. This base occupies an important location in the North African Division, the division of "Skyrocket Fleet" fame, which brings New York to within 46 hours of India.

Anthony Joseph Cauti, 18, S. 2/c, Jefferson avenue, has been transferred to the Atlantic Fleet's mine-craft training center, Little Creek, Va. Cauti reported there from duty at the Naval Operating Base at Norfolk, Va. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Olindo Cauti, of Bristol.

ABOARD A U. S. BATTLESHIP OFF OKINAWA (Delayed) — Lt. Daniel S. Rankin, (Ch), of St. Mary's Manor, So. Langhorne, Pa., had a grandstand seat from which to view the invasion of Okinawa.

This hardhitting ship, while under threat of air attack, moved up within 3,000 yards of the shore, cruising slowly back and forth and pulverizing the beach targets at point-blank range. The crew could clearly see the explosions from the ship's shells as her guns smashed pilboxes, gun emplacements, warehouses and trench fortifications.

The ship's anti-aircraft gunners fought off deadly air assaults during the bombardment period, and on one occasion only skillful maneuvering of the vessel by her commanding officer saved her from a torpedo which had been dropped.

At one time a Jap "Zeke" bomber, pursued by two U. S. Navy planes, came within range of the ship's 20-mm. and 40-mm. guns, and crew members of this ship and those of another close-by had the satisfaction of seeing the enemy crash into the sea. Another time bombs from a Jap plane fell only 200 yards off the port bow. By early afternoon of invasion day, the big ship's primary target area had been captured and she was free to lend her powerful support against other enemy held areas.

Walter Eschanko, 23, F. 2/c, son of Mrs. Fannie Eschanko, of Cedar avenue, Croydon, is at the amphibious training base, Camp Bradford, Va., in advanced training for LST duty. Eschanko served aboard an LST during the invasion of southern France.

Two Bristol men were among those graduating recently from intensive courses of service schools training at the U. S. Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill. Their training has been designed to fit them for specialized Navy jobs in the long Pacific war ahead and also for skilled work in industry when peace comes.

Upon graduation the Bluejackets are sent to sea, to shore stations, or to advanced schools for further study.

The recent graduates are: William H. Richardson, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Heaton, Bath street signalman school; and Theodore R. Smith, 34, husband of Mrs. Theodore Smith, RD No. 1, basic engineering school.

other islands which might be used as bases from which to launch such operations in the Borneo area.

Americans were in the Sulu Archipelago, to the northeast, and on Palawan, to the north; and Australian and Dutch fightingmen were in control of Tarakan, to the east.

MacArthur did announce that his heavy, medium and fighter bombers continued their neutralizing strikes against Borneo's air and supply bases. Some 176 tons of bombs fell on enemy targets, starting large fires and extensive damage. At the same time, light naval units shelled the northern coast of Borneo.

Official expression of the Nipponese fears that an even greater invasion—that of Japan itself—might be in the formative stages came from Premier Kantaro Suzuki at Tokyo. In addressing an extraordinary session of the imperial diet, he said that "advantages of geography and solidarity of the people" would enable the Japs to "finally repulse the enemy from our soil."

Concerning Allied demands for the unconditional surrender of Japan, Suzuki told his parliament that the "only answer" would be to "fight it out in this war for self-preservation and self-defense."

However, Nippon admitted that it faced the "gravest crisis in history," and Suzuki said he believed Hirohito wants peace more than does anyone else. He spoke of the fact that "Japan and the United States had to fight each other" as a "matter of utmost regret."

Members of the Kamnik and Hutchinson families were received by the bride and groom at the home of the bride's parents following the ceremony. The newlyweds will reside in Trevose Heights upon their return from a week's journey.

The United States is full of Americans who would be glad to see the United States and Russia work harmoniously for world peace; but who, more realistic than Wallace, understand fully that co-operation cannot be a purely one-sided matter—that Russia must help.

And others see that the present low ebb of world peace is due, broadly speaking, to two Russian actions:

first, denial of the Atlantic Charter by seizing the small nations of Western Europe; and second, entering into a separate treaty with France (just before the Crimean conference), which substituted "bi-lateral" action for world co-operation.

The United States is full of Americans who would be glad to see the United States and Russia work harmoniously for world peace; but who, more realistic than Wallace, understand fully that co-operation cannot be a purely one-sided matter—that Russia must help.

Wallace spoke eloquently of the "foul enterprise" of "enemies of peace" who are "deliberately trying to stir up trouble" between the two nations.

This is tommy-rot. The force which has been stirring up the trouble has been the nationalism and the ambition of Russia, and not either Hitler agents, as Communists have suggested, or Republicans, as Wallace pretends to think.

Meanwhile, the arguments of those who have depicted Wallace's dream-plan of "60,000,000 jobs" as a prelude to Communistic dictatorship have strong confirmation from the words of Wallace himself when he speaks of Soviet Russia as "economic, democracy."
